

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

1
2
3
4
5
6
7

A fracture fixation system includes a device with a plate portion intended to be positioned against bone. The plate portion includes a plurality of threaded holes defining a respective number of axes which are divergent. Pegs coupled within the threaded holes extend to follow the contour of subchondral bone and provide a framework for support for fracture healing.